THE DINNER TO-NIGHT.

The dinner given to Mr. CLEVELAND by the Reform Club to night will be an affair of more than ordinary interest and enjoyment. It will suggest to the banquetters, as a matter of course, many agreeable thoughts outside of the enjoyment of the feast. When the soup is served, what a soothing reflection it will be that the honored guest and his friends are not in it. With the entrance of the fish, pleasant visions of the loaves and fishes will pass before the eyes of the company gathered around the dinner table.
